

13-15 June 2001

The themes

Five themed tracks will cater for a broad spectrum of interests:

Planning for the future

*Professor Malcolm Grant, University of Cambridge
Cllr Keith House, Local Government Association
Jo Ravetz, University of Manchester*

Successful cities

*Rodger McConnell, Glasgow City Council
Cllr Richard Leese, Manchester City Council
Mike Galloway, Dundee City Council*

What future for the countryside?

*Laurie Russell, Strathclyde European Partner
Richard Wakeford, The Countryside Agency*

Spatial planning — the big picture

*Robin Thompson, Kent County Council
Andrew Lyons, Forward Scotland*

Free to choose — how to move

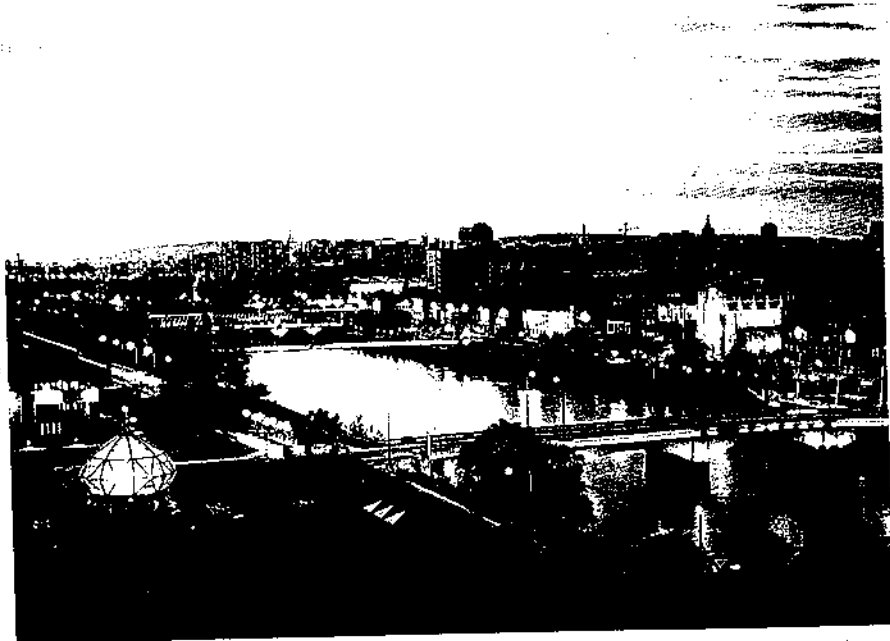

*George Hazell, Napier University
Viscountess Knollys, Inland Waterways Association*

The programme will combine plenary sessions with workshops, as well as breakfast meetings. Study tours and walks will give delegates a taste of the issues and problems being faced in the area and the solutions being found. The associated social programme includes a fun run, and the conference dinner.

5 easy ways to book

- ✕ Visit our website: www.rtpiconferences.co.uk/glasgow
- Call Emma Johnson on 020 7881 1857 to reserve your place if booking by credit card
- Fax this booking form to us on 020 7730 3089
- By e-mail to: Glasgow@rtpiconferences.co.uk
- Send this form to: Emma Johnson, RTPI Conferences/Croner.CCH, 12-18 Grosvenor Gardens, London SW1W 0DH

The Scottish Exhibition & Conference Centre, Glasgow

Lord Esher called Glasgow "the finest surviving example of a great Victorian city" and, notwithstanding major clearance programmes in the 1960s and 70s, it remains so today. The city has been proactive in both renewal and conservation and contains example after example of innovative planning approaches.

The city centre provides some of the best examples of new shopping and cultural developments in the UK and even the River Clyde is coming alive again, with major new developments on the sites of former shipyards.

Planning to be proud of

Nick Davies, President of the RTPI says: "This conference is about the future — the future of our cities, towns and countryside, and the future of the planning systems we use to encourage and control their development.

"The planning system in the UK is under threat: for many it is seen as being too slow and cumbersome and as stifling growth. The basic functions of development control and development planning are in danger of becoming a primarily administrative activity and of being surpassed by politically driven short-term 'community plans'.

Should we be concerned about this? Or should we be thinking about promoting change to really give us, and the UK, planning to be proud of?"

The commercial exhibition

The exhibition taking place alongside the conference hall is the venue for the opening wine reception and all refreshment breaks. This will give delegates ample time to meet exhibitors from a broad spectrum of planning.

There are a variety of ways that you could heighten your company's profile at the RTPI's premier planning event. Whether you choose to take an advertisement in the exhibition catalogue, or sponsor an evening's entertainment, drinks reception, planning workshop or seminar, you can be sure to target a captive planning audience in an informal setting which encourages a valuable exchange of ideas and information.

Exhibition floor plans, sponsorship packs, prices and application forms can be obtained from Simon Owen on 020 7881 1863.